PCPD Officers Now Issued Body Cams

Starting this month PCPD officers will be now issued “Body Cams” funded almost entirely by state & federal grant money. These state of the art units can be activated at any time by the officer to assist in documentation of encounters with the public and to assist in better criminal case preparation.

The device, manufactured by VieVu, appears similar in style to pagers worn on the belt some years ago. The cameras are placed on the front of the officer’s shirt and record video as well as audio when activated. The camera is clearly activated when a lime green front cover of the camera is visible (as seen in the photo of Officer James Rodrigues).
