Why:

This is an opportunity to share with officials from other communities and organizations how our community works within our City limits and across area boundaries to improve Walkability, Bike-ability and Public Transit. The focus is Active Transportation.

How:

Park City encourages visitors, interested in coming to Park City to “leave the car at home”. This tour will demonstrate four alternative transportation modes (walking, biking/e-biking, public transit and lift service), in which participants will hear from several speakers on various transportation related issues while touring Park City and the Snyderville Basin.

Participant Requirements

Participants interested in the event should be physically capable of the following:

- Riding a bicycle or electrically assisted bicycle for more than one hour, at an elevation of 7000’ under typical Utah summer weather conditions
- Walking or hiking on urban and/or recreational trails/pathways for more than 30 minutes under similar conditions stated above.
- Able to ride on a ski lift.

*Park City will accommodate any interested participant via our mobile ride share service should it be requested. If you are interested in this service, it would be helpful from a logistics standpoint to know at the time of your registration.
